A Victorian Era Mystery: “Whodunit” at the Mansion

Grades 3 – 5 Background Information & Requirements

Background Information

Mystery books were very popular during the Victorian era when the Mansion, then known as “Elm Park,” was built for LeGrand and Ann Louisa Lockwood. Students are asked to write a short “whodunit” story with characters from the Lockwood or Mathews families that will include at least three facts. Writers may also include friends that might have visited the Mansion or a detective from the City of Norwalk. All descriptions must be in keeping with the historical period selected. Research the Mansion and the families who lived here by reading the history on the LMMM website, under the tab, “History,” and by talking to the museum’s educators, if needed. All stories must have non-violent content. No murders, please!

Students may choose one of the following scenarios or create their own:

- A valuable piece of jewelry has been lost by an absent-minded family member. Identify outsiders who came to the Mansion who may be potential suspects.
- The statue of Edwin and Florence Lockwood was damaged overnight. Help a detective from the City of Norwalk and members of the Lockwood family find the person who broke this precious work of art.
- Taking place today, a priceless artifact from the Lockwood-Mathews Mansion Museum has been stolen (or gone missing). Write a story about the history of the artifact, why it was stolen, who took it, and help the Museum’s curator solve the mystery.

Requirements

- No more than 3 typed pages, double-spaced and 12-point font.
- Stories should include at least 3 facts about the history of the Mansion.
- Students are encouraged to research the topic and gather information for their story.
- Papers due by Friday, June 7th.
